

Cutscene 3

Seong losing consciousness

"The power... it's too much... I can't... hold on..."

Dialog with a player

Seong: "Where am I? What is this place?"

Player: "Seong, you're in a space between dreams and reality. I'm the presence you've been sensing—the one guiding your actions while you sleep."

Seong: "You... You've been controlling me? Why should I trust you? What do you want from me?"

Player: "I understand your fear, Seong. But listen to me. My only goal is to defeat the Monster King. His power will allow me to return to my own dimension. I have no intention of harming you or anyone you care about."

Seong: "And I'm supposed to believe that? You're asking me to give up control of my own body, to trust a voice I don't even know. How do I know you won't betray me?"

Player: "Look at what happened in the square. You saved countless lives with your power. I helped you use that power for good. I need your help to finish this—to defeat the Monster King. After that, I will be gone, and you will be free."

Seong: "But what if you're lying? What if giving you control means losing myself completely?"

Player: "Seong, you've seen the destruction these monsters can cause. If we don't stop the Monster King, countless more will suffer. You have the strength to end this. And I promise, I will leave as soon as our task is complete. You won't lose yourself—you'll be a hero."

Seong: "Alright. I'll trust you. But know this—if you betray me or harm anyone I care about, I'll find a way to fight back."

Player: "Thank you, Seong. I swear, I won't betray your trust. Together, we'll defeat the Monster King and bring peace to your world."

Seong: "Then let's do it. Take control and let's end this once and for all."
